Dear Dr. Henney;

Please take steps to ban all non-medical uses of antibiotics in animals.

I do not want to eat the stuff in my yogurt, my eggs, or on my chicken.

What really is alarming though is the thought of wasting the marvel that antibiotics are by over consuming them. As more and more disease-causing bacteria become resistant to treatment by antibiotics, some bacterial infections could become untreatable.

The pharmaceutical industry and agricultural interests continue to set the rules. But they do not have very good vision. All they can see is money.

The FDA should revoke approval of antibiotics in animal feed and restrict the introduction of any new ones.

Sincerely;

David Simone
